Sincere thanks for your kind lines, which I am answering right away. I am very glad above all that you are agoin well. What a fine feeling, which I regretfully do not have. I have my old trouble of the kidneys and bladder, and my thrombosis. lessened by the spring and summer weather, is worse again now, as it has been cold. The pains are terrible and my leg is not only still very swollen, but the foot looks like an elephant foot and I have not been wearing shoes for weeks, but more sandals. Only thus can I put on any footwear. I am now already accustomed to the pain and misery. I look, however, as people tell me, very, very good and no one would surmise these really painful and not undangerous things shout we. In younger years I always laughed when an old man explained that he could not work so well and was hindered by sickness. How it has me and I must take a mild turn at it. No excitement at all, and the liquid dist brings so much with it. I had to come back here again, for business matters were urgent and no one is here who can and wants to take care of things. Of course, it was much more beautiful in London and we were in Paradice, far away from bad peopls. But after a few days of rest, work calls again.

dust when I wrote to Hugi, I had received the appointment as representative in Austrian affairs in the field of loans. I thall get full powers soon, for I can only begin when complete authority (Volimecht) is in my hands. So I hope that again, as in the good old times, I can offer Austria my services and also contribute much in that connection, and that the economic estuation will improve. Old friends in Vienna have not forgotten me and have thought much about me. Such a condition prevails even yet, and I saw that old bonds with only a few exceptions still hold. I was moved during my sufferings because one thought of me, and it happens so seldom nowadays that anyone lets anything good come to a person. Perhaps it was also the knowledge that I always carry out all my tasks with seal, and perhaps one has even confused me with others. If we use each other, more about that, although I can only work out these loan matters in a distant country. My friends will report after a certain time, I bolieve, that they have watched your business a certain time and that paths lead there, which my business friends do not much like. But I have said the best and my word resounds even today surely not unheard.

In about 14 days, I shall come through Salsburg and shall not fail to look you up. How are things at the Ruperthof. They will surely have enough. Your bost business is beginning now, I am sure of that.

Many sincere greetings to you and to your grecious wife.

Your Macallan
